

Why you should attend Global Entrepreneurship Week?

Just want to thank the guys at Blog2U.sg for this sponsored review on the Global Entrepreneurship Week jointly organised by ACE and NUS Enterprise.

I would highly urge that every student, graduate, and those aspiring to be an entrepreneur make time to attend these events held during the Global Entrepreneurship Week. Although it is an annual event, the programs organized for the attendees are always different, especially my favorite event - CEO Unplugged!

CEO Unplugged is a good opportunity to learn about the experiences of successful entrepreneurs. It is aimed to be a source of inspiration and a wealth of knowledge where CEOs will be put under the lens as they are fielded with questions. You can listen to distinguished CEOs share their journey toward being a successful entrepreneur. This year's invited speakers include Mr William Lim from Old Chang Kee!

There are definitely many definitions of an entrepreneur, but that actually does not matter because what really makes you different from the rest is the experience you have! If you ask me, I can tell you that I am an entrepreneur who have failed several times. It hurts initially because I had sacrificed my time, money and sleep, but it also made me more careful in future.

I really liked what Daniel from Young Upstarts has written. Passion is probably the most important thing that should not be missing out in an entrepreneur. Be it a student entrepreneur or a old businessman, as long as passion drives you, nothing can stop you from achieving your goals. Singapore has probably one of the best incubating environments around in the world -> These are some government agencies you can look for if you ever need assistance in starting up: Spring Singapore, EnterpriseOne, and Economic Development Board\(EBD\).

Okay, I will stop here of my nonsense.

There is much emphasis placed in organizing the Global Entrepreneurship Week for the youths because ultimately, we are the ones who are going to contribute the country's Gross Domestic Product (GDP). It is very important to learn the ropes well and train up even more entrepreneurs because it is a form of contributing back to the society.

If you feel that there is an inner calling for you to be an entrepreneur, don't forget to sign up for the events to gain an insight on how entrepreneurs think and react to different types of situations!

Global Entrepreneurship Week runs from 17 November 2008 to 23 November 2008. Be sure to check out the website for more information.
