SEP to Croatia — University of Zagreb
The University of Zagreb in Croatia is one of the oldest and most reputable universities in Eastern Europe. It is a comprehensive university with a variety of courses to choose from. My professors were hospitable and patient in fostering the memorable learning experience I had during my exchange semester.

An emphasis on student benefits and welfare is still present in Croatian society. Even after the collapse of the socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. Food and accommodation in the university and transportation within the country are highly subsidised by the Croatian government. The cost of living is relatively lower in Croatia compared to other parts of Europe. Students interested in going to Croatia for their SEP need not be concerned that the cost of the exchange programme will be a humongous sum.

Moreover, Croatia is also the gateway to many Eastern European countries with many direct bus and train routes to cities such as Budapest, Ljubljana, Vienna, Sarajevo and Belgrade. This makes travelling so much easier and affordable!

Elliot Sim, SEP to University of Zagreb, Croatia in AY2015/16. Worked as a Management Trainee at IRO after graduation from 2015 to 2017.
