

NUS wins at global moot

A team from the National University of Singapore (NUS) Faculty of Law emerged top in the inaugural Herbert Smith Freehills Competition Law Moot at King's College London.

The team of final-year students Lisa Tan, Jeremiah Lau and Benjamin Wong claimed victory over the University of Amsterdam team in the finals of the simulated court proceedings.

Ms Tan won the Best Oralist Prize with a perfect score of 50 out of 50, while Mr Lau and Mr Wong finished as joint runners-up alongside two other students.

Ms Tan said jet-lag posed a challenge to the team, along with the fact that their European opponents were more familiar with European Union competition law. She added: "However, we were not put off by the challenges and were determined to do our best."

WINNERS: NUS law students (from left) Jeremiah Lau, Lisa Tan and Benjamin Wong, with Associate Professor Burton Ong, their coach. PHOTO: NATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF SINGAPORE

The team went through two preliminary rounds, a quarter-final and a semi-final before the final showdown, in front of a panel of seven international judges.