Professor Alec Stone Sweet

Professor Alec Stone Sweet is a leading American academic in the fields of international law and comparative law. He is currently the Leitner Professor of Law, Politics and International Studies at Yale University. His research has focused on law and courts, and the impact of judges on legislators and other policymakers, on market integration and transnational economic activity, and on the protection of human rights.

Prof Stone Sweet has published numerous articles in major journals of law and social science, as well as thirteen books and edited volumes, including: A Europe of Rights: The Impact of the ECHR on National Legal Systems (Oxford University Press, 2008); The Judicial Construction of Europe (Oxford University Press, 2004); On Law, Politics, and Judicialization (Oxford University Press, 2003); The Politics of Delegation (Cass, 2002); The Institutionalization of Europe (Oxford University Press, 2001); Governing with Judges (Oxford University Press, 2000); European Integration and Supranational Governance (Oxford University Press, 1998); and The Birth of Judicial Politics in France (Oxford University Press, 1992). Prof Stone Sweet's current book project, to be published by Oxford University Press, is entitled, The Institutional Evolution of International Arbitration: Judicialization, Governance, Legitimacy.

Prior to joining Yale in 2004, Prof Stone Sweet was Official Fellow, Nuffield College, Oxford (1999-2004), and Professor at the University of California, Irvine. He has also held visiting professorships at the Bocconi University Law School (Milan), the Columbia Law School (New York), as well as in law faculties in Aix-en-Provence (France), Bologna (Italy), Florence (Italy), Madrid (Spain), Paris (France), Stockholm (Sweden), Sydney (Australia), and Vienna (Austria).

Prof Stone Sweet has taught a wide range of courses in law, among which Comparative Law, Comparative Constitutional Law, Law and Globalisation, Legal Pluralism and Global Law, the European Convention on Human Rights, European Union Law, Qualitative Research Design for Legal Research, and International Arbitration.

Prof Stone Sweet will join the NUS Faculty of Law as the first Saw Swee Hock Centennial Professor of Law in January 2016.
