Theatre Studies

The Theatre Studies Programme trains students in the critical understanding and practice of theatre, in the context of both global and local theatres. After foundational training in the core histories, forms, methods and issues that have shaped contemporary theatre practices, the curriculum develops the scope of theatre studies by addressing performance in other mediums and cultural practices that can be studied as performances, such as social rituals, popular culture and public media. In your foundational module, you will be introduced to the theoretical underpinnings of theatre, including its history, dramaturgy and contemporary theories of performance. This is complemented by practical work in voice, acting and collaborative presentations. Subsequently, students select modules from three main strands: Framing Histories, Cultures in Practice, and Researching Performance. The modules offered in these strands include Asian Theatres: Tradition and the Contemporary, Making Contemporary Performance, Voice Studies and Production, As If: Actors and Acting, Performance and Popular Culture, and Digital Archiving and Performance. The programme emphasises the integration of theory and practice throughout its curriculum in both the teaching and the study of theatre and performance. Graduates in Theatre Studies are well-trained for a variety of arts and media careers, from creative practice and arts management, to event planning and journalism. The transferable skills developed in critical thinking, clear communication and creative problem-solving also mean that graduates are also well-placed to enter a wide range of professions extending from teaching and research to entrepreneurship, marketing, and the diplomatic service.
