

A very big HELLO to all fellow ESE mates! :D

Do you wonder about safety measures when you're doing experiments in the laboratories, or how it will be like when you step out of the laboratories and into the corporate world without friendly lab techs to guide you? Then mark 22nd September on your calendar as it is time for the ESE Safety, Health and Environment Day (SHED) 2009!

Co-organised by the ESE Safety Committee and ESESC, ESE SHED is for you to learn more about the laboratory and workplace safety. Join us for a fun morning of interactive games and insightful speeches from distinguished guests!

The poster features a green background with a sunburst pattern. At the top left, there are icons for a battery, a lightning bolt, a hand holding a pencil, and a fire. The main title 'ESE Safety Day' is in large, stylized orange and yellow letters. Below it, the date 'Date: 22 September 2009, Tuesday' and time 'Time: 9am - 1230pm' are listed. The location is 'Engineering Auditorium'. On the right side, there is a yellow box containing a list of activities from 0900h to 1230h. At the bottom right, it says 'Co-organised by ESE Safety Committee & ESE Students Club'. There are also several blue starburst graphics with text: 'Bring your friends along!' at the top right, 'Speakers from NUS and industries will be coming down' in the middle, and 'Interactive games and prizes to be won!' at the bottom left. A LEGO minifigure in a lab coat and safety goggles is holding a red beaker with a flame at the bottom left. At the top right, four LEGO minifigures are standing together.
