3.1 Degrees Offered

The Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy offers four master degree programmes and a Ph.D. in Public Policy.:

1. The Master in Public Policy (MPP):

This academically rigorous two-year degree programme is targeted at pre- and early-career professionals with an interest in public affairs. MPP students are exposed to an analytical toolkit from the economics, political science and management disciplines and, upon graduation, will be ready to pursue a variety of careers in the public, private and not-for-profit sectors. Students attending the MPP programme will get the chance to enrol in double degree programmes the School has established with its partners in the Global Public Policy Network (GPPN) - Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs, the London School of Economics and Political Science, and Sciences Po, Paris.

2. The Master in Public Administration (MPA):

This management-centric one-year degree programme is targeted at mid-career professionals who are looking to boost their career potential. Drawing on the strengths of a traditional public policy education, the MPA prepares students for the challenges involved in taking on a managerial or leadership position in a variety of public, private and not-for-profit organisations.

3. The Master in Public Management (MPM):

This exclusive one-year degree programme is targeted at senior policymakers with a proven leadership track record in public service and is intended to intellectually reinvigorate and equip them with the latest thinking and best practices in public policy. This programme also includes a full semester in North American Universities including Harvard and Columbia University.

4. The Master in Public Administration and Management (MPAM):

(This degree programme is delivered in Chinese.) The Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy in collaboration with NUS Business School offer a Master in Public Administration and Management (MPAM) programme taught in Chinese to train public service professionals and Chinese State-Owned Enterprise (SOE) executives. MPAM graduates will be equipped to perform in a wide variety of public service fields in all levels of government, in the international arena, and in the private sector.

5. The Doctor of Philosophy:

This Ph.D. programme is designed to strengthen the capability and effectiveness of students in researching complex multi-dimensional policy issues. It will equip them with the necessary theoretical frameworks, research methods and tools to conduct scientific inquiry to address contemporary public policy issues.

3.2 Degree Requirements

Master in Public Policy

Admission Policy

The objective of the Master in Public Policy (MPP) programme's admissions policy is to select a diverse group of students who have not only outstanding academic ability but also the potential for career growth and who are committed to public service.

Graduates of the programme are likely to pursue careers with national, regional or international governments, non-profit organisations, the media, public sector planning firms, international corporations, and other agencies devoted to public interest.

The MPP Candidate

The Admissions Committee selects candidates for this Master's programme using a variety of criteria. In general, the candidate should display evidence of professional merit, intellectual distinction, leadership ability and a desire to build a career with social impact.

To be considered for the Master in Public Policy programme, you must have:

- A National University of Singapore (NUS) honours degree (at least Second Upper) or an equivalent degree, such as a four-year Bachelor's degree with an average grade of B or better; or
- A good Bachelor's degree and passed the School's placement test.

Other qualifications and experience may be accepted subject to approval by the NUS Board of Graduate Studies. Applicants should preferably have some background in Economics and Mathematics.

Requirements

The minimum candidature period for the MPP is 18 months and the maximum is three years. Within that time, a student must earn at least 64 graduate-level Modular Credits (MCs) by completing at least 15 modules, comprising eight core modules (32 MCs) and seven electives (28 MCs), plus a Policy Analysis Exercise (4 MCs). Most MPP students read four modules per semester and complete the requirements in four semesters spanning two years. Students may apply to read electives (up to 12 MCs) taught in other programmes within NUS.

Semester One	July – November	Orientation and Review Programme 3 core modules and 1 elective
Semester Two	December January – April	Vacation 3 core modules and 1 elective
Semester Three	May – July August – November	Vacation 2 core modules and 2 electives
Semester Four	December January – April	Vacation 3 electives and Policy Analysis Exercise

The Core Courses

The core curriculum provides the basic skills and knowledge essential for public problem-solving and the management of public affairs through the development of analytical skills. It draws on concepts and theories from disciplines such as economics, politics, and public management. The development of these skills progresses from the fundamental (such as knowing how to ask the right questions to define the problem when confronted with complicated and unfamiliar issues) to the sophisticated (such as being able to communicate clearly and persuasively in the decision-making process, both orally and in writing).

Master in Public Administration

Admission Policy

For the MPA programme, the School seeks candidates who are committed to the ideals of public service. Candidates should be highly motivated, outward-looking, and open to new ideas, and be able to share insights from their own work experience with their classmates.

The MPA Candidate

The Admissions Committee selects candidates for this Master's programme using a variety of criteria.

Applicants will be evaluated on their academic preparation, and the depth and quality of their experience, as demonstrated by work history, references, and the applicant's written analysis of past employment experience. To be considered for the Master in Public Administration programme, you must have at least five years of work experience and

- A National University of Singapore (NUS) honours degree (at least Second Upper) or an equivalent degree, such as a four-year Bachelor's degree with an average grade of B or better; or
- A good Bachelor's degree and passed the School's placement test.

Other qualifications may be accepted subject to approval by the NUS Board of Graduate Studies.

Requirements

The minimum candidature period for the MPA is one year and the maximum is four years. Within that time, a student must earn at least 40 graduate-level Modular Credits (MCs) by completing at least ten modules, comprising six core modules (24 MCs) and four electives (16 MCs). Most full-time MPA students read four modules each in the two regular semesters and two modules in the Special Term, which is a condensed semester that runs from mid-May to mid-July.

Students may apply to read electives (up to 8 MCs) taught in other programmes within NUS. Full-time students may read a maximum of five modules per regular semester and two in the Special Term. Part-time students may read a maximum of two modules per regular semester and one in the Special Term.

The academic calendar for a typical one-year full-time programme is:

Semester One	Mid July – November	Orientation 2 core modules 2 electives
	December	Vacation
Semester Two	January – April	2 core modules 2 electives
	Beginning May - mid-May	Vacation
Special Term	Mid-May – mid-July (condensed semester)	2 core modules Capstone examination

Master in Public Management

Admission Policy

For the Master in Public Management (MPM) programme, the School seeks a diverse group of candidates who hold leadership positions within their organisations and are committed to serving their community.

The MPM Candidate

The Admissions Committee selects candidates for this programme using a broad set of criteria. In general, the candidate should be an accomplished senior official, holding a decision-making position. He or she should be ready to contribute a unique perspective and experience to the programme to benefit other students, and be ready to contribute back to his organisation and country at the end of his or her training. The ideal candidate is a key member of the organisation and whose MPM training will be seen as vital in the organisation's next step forward.

Applicants seeking admission to the course for the degree of Master in Public Management must have:

- A good NUS honours degree (second class and above) or equivalent (e.g., a four-year Bachelors degree with at least an average grade of B or equivalent), and at least eight years of relevant work experience; or
- A good Bachelors degree and successful completion of a placement test, and at least eight years of relevant work experience; or exceptionally

Other qualifications and experience subject to approval by the Board of Graduate Studies.

Requirements

The minimum candidature for the MPM programme is one year and the maximum is 18 months. Within that time, he or she must earn at least 40 graduate-level Modular Credits (MCs) by completing at least five modules at NUS (of which 4 are core modules) and four modules at the Harvard Kennedy School of Government (KSG), Harvard University or School of International and Public Affairs (SIPA), Columbia University. In addition, he or she must complete an attachment programme and present a paper pertaining to the attachment at the Public Management Seminar Series.

Structure of the MPM Programme

The Programme consists of two components: an NUS component, and a specially designed programme at a partner university.

The NUS Component

MPM candidates will go through an orientation programme, one full semester and a condensed semester of coursework at the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, Singapore. Candidates will also be required to participate in an attachment programme.

The Partner University Component

The programme taps into the established strengths in public policy training at a partner university, for example, the Harvard Kennedy School of Government (KSG), Harvard University or the School of International and Public Affairs (SIPA), Columbia University and complements the training provided at NUS. For this component, the MPM candidate will spend a semester at a partner university on a specially designed academic programme.

National University of Singapore
Semester One	January – April	Orientation and Review Programme 3 core modules and 1 elective Examinations and Break
	May – June	Attachment Programme Break
Semester Two	July – August	1 core module Completion and presentation of attachment paper Examinations and Break
Partner University
September – end December		4 electives Examinations and Break
National University of Singapore
End December – mid January		Public Management Seminar module Valedictory Dinner

Master in Public Administration and Management

Admission Policy

The School seeks a diverse group of candidates who hold senior leadership positions within their organisations and are committed to serving their community.

The MPAM Candidate

The Admissions Committee selects candidates for this programme using a broad set of criteria. In general, the candidate should be an accomplished senior official, holding a decision-making position. He or she should be ready to contribute a unique perspective and experience to the programme to benefit other students, and be ready to contribute back to his organisation and country at the end of his or her training. The ideal candidate is a key member of the organisation and whose MPAM training will be seen as vital in the organisation's next step forward.

Applicants seeking admission to the course for the degree of Master in Public

Administration and Management must have:

- A good honours degree (second class and above) or equivalent (e.g., a four year Bachelors degree with at least an average grade of B or equivalent), and at least five years of relevant work experience; or
- A good Bachelors degree and successful completion of a placement interview, and at least five years of relevant work experience; or exceptionally
- Other qualifications and experience subject to approval by the Board of Graduate Studies
- Adequate Chinese language abilities

Applicants will also be evaluated on the depth and quality of their experience and leadership capabilities as demonstrated by their professional accomplishments. All applications should preferably be supported by relevant government organizational departments.

Requirements

Candidates will be required to complete 40 modular credits (MCs) or the equivalent of 10 modules. Of the 40 MCs, 32 MCs will be met through core modules and the rest through electives.

Under special circumstances, the LKYSPP Vice-Dean (Academic Affairs), after considering the views of the MPAM Programme Director, may exempt a candidate from taking certain core modules. The candidate must then substitute the core modules with elective modules.

A full-time candidate in the MPAM programme will be expected to read the required modules over 2 semesters and a special term. 16 MCs will be read in each of the regular semesters and 8 MCs in the special term.

A candidate who fails in a core module must retake and pass the examination in that core module in a subsequent semester or the special term. A candidate who fails in an elective module may, subject to approval of the School, retake the module or choose an alternative module and pass the examination in the module in a subsequent semester or the special term.

The MPAM programme schedule and modular credit distribution is as follows:

Period March – June	Programme	Modular credits
March – June (1st semester)	Orientation 4 modules (4 core)	4 x 4 = 16
July – Aug (Special Term)	2 modules (2 core)	2 x 4 = 8
Sept – Dec (2nd semester)	4 modules (2 core, 2 electives)	4 x 4 = 16
	Total	40

The minimum and maximum candidature period for the MPAM degree shall be 10 months and 4 years respectively.

Doctor of Philosophy in Public Policy

Admission Policy

Applicants seeking admission to the Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) programme must have a good Master's degree in a relevant discipline or a Second Class Upper Honours degree or equivalent in a relevant discipline. Applicants will be evaluated on their ability to undertake a rigorous academic programme as demonstrated by references, and the applicant's written analysis of past research experience. The candidate should be motivated, outward-looking, and open to new ideas. Additionally, the candidate should preferably have some background in Mathematics and Economics.

The Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy is an autonomous graduate school of the National University of Singapore. Its mission is to provide opportunities for the education and training of the next generation of Asian policymakers and leaders, with the objective of raising the standards of governance throughout the region, improving the lives of the people in the region and, in so doing, contribute to the transformation of Asia.

Although the School was formally launched in 2004, it inherited the National University of Singapore's Public Policy Programme, which was established in 1992 in partnership with Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government. The School continues to maintain this strong partnership with Harvard's Kennedy School of Government.

At the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy we subscribe to the following definitions of public policy:

1. Prudence and wisdom in the management of public affairs; and
2. A definite course of action selected from among alternatives in light of given conditions, to guide and determine future decisions in and for the public interest.

Hence, at the School, we aim to equip policymakers and policy-leaders with the mindsets and tools necessary to make prudent, wise and effective decisions that are in the public interest, and within the context of the unique conditions and circumstances prevalent in their societies and cultures. The goal is to equip students with relevant concepts, reasoning and problem solving skills in economics, politics and management, and also teach them how to apply these in particular contexts. Students are also exposed to public policy challenges in diverse areas from international trade to international policies, from transport to healthcare.
