Top honours for man who built up SIA, led GIC, MAS

J.Y. Pillay among 4,985 receiving National Day honours for their service to the nation

Senior Political Correspondent

Mr J.Y. Pillay, 85, the longest-serving chairman of the Council of Presidential Advisers (CPA), has been awarded Singapore's highest civilian honour. He is the 11th Singaporean to receive the Order of Temasek (With Distinction).

A veteran civil servant whom founding Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew said was "equal to the best brains in America", Mr Pillay was permanent secretary in the fi-nance, defence and national development ministries.

Other positions he held previously included chairman of the Singapore Exchange and DBS Bank, as well as managing director of GIC and the Monetary Authority of Singapore (MAS). He chaired the CPA from 2005 until January this year.

He continues to be a member of the Presidential Council for Minority Rights. He is also rector of the College of Alice & Peter Tan at the National University of Singapore, and a board member of the Vatican's Financial Information Authority.

In addition to overseeing the formation of the Singapore Exchange in 1999, Mr Pillay was founding chairman of Singapore Airlines. From a small fleet of 12 aircraft when he took over in 1972, SIA had grown to become one of the world's top airlines by the time he stepped down in 1996.

"I have very satisfying memories of my career in the civil service. If asked to cite the most traumatic event, I would say it was the socalled Pan-Electric crisis in the November of 1985, not long after I was posted to the MAS," said Mr Pillay, referring to the collapse of Singapore-based company Pan-Electric Industries that led to a three-day shutdown of the Singapore and Kuala Lumpur stock exchanges in fire for me. Although the shock waves it created carried the moniker of 'Pan-Electric' (a rather insignificant manufacturing company in Jurong), it was a crisis of the stockbroking industry, which at that time was a mutualised entity.

"The industry recovered, but it took another 15 years for it to be demutualised and modernised."

His best memories, he said, were working with his colleagues and superiors to try to achieve mutually agreed goals. "The two outstanding mentors I have had the privilege of serving were Hon Sui Sen and Goh Keng Swee. Not at all identical in personality and behaviour, but both driven by the common desire to make our world a better place.

"And both great human beings. I am greatly indebted to them."

The late Mr Hon and Mr Goh were both finance ministers, among their many other roles in

The next highest award this year, the Order of Nila Utama (With High Distinction) goes to former minister and newly minted Singapore Management University chancellor Lim Chee Onn.

Mr Lim, 75, chairs the Singapore-Suzhou Township Development and is an honorary chairman of the National Heritage Board as well as a CPA member. He was executive chairman of Keppel Corporation from 2000 to 2008.

He served as a board member of MAS and as MP from 1977 to 1992. He was also secretary-general of the National Trades Union Congress from 1979 to 1983 and minister without portfolio in the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) from 1980

Both the Order of Temasek and Order of Nila Utama are conferred by the President on the advice of the Prime Minister.

Mr Pillay and Mr Lim are among 4,985 individuals receiving National Day honours this year for their service to the nation.

Three individuals received the Distinguished Service Order, the year. Among them is charity sector veteran Gerard Ee, 69, chairman of the Charity Council and Agency for Integrated Care (AIC).

Mr J.Y. Pillay, who has been awarded the Order of Temasek (With Distinction), said his best memories are of working with colleagues and superiors. ST FILE PHOTO

He told The Straits Times that in his more than 30 years of social serthe Council for Third Age (C3A), an agency promoting active ageing in Singapore through public education, outreach and partnerships.

"It took me two years to promote the idea (of C3A)," he said.

When the then Ministry of Community Development, Youth and Sports gave Mr Ee's brainchild the nod in 2007, "I could not wait any longer and took it upon myself to submit the registration papers", he said.

"C3A took over the annual Senior Citizens' Week, reformatted and relaunched it as an active ageing event. Today, active ageing is very much a part of the local vocab-ulary, and C3A is thriving under new leadership.

For his contributions, Mr Ee, a retired chartered accountant, is receiving the Distinguished Service Order from the Government.

His citation notes his "significant contributions in setting the direction for the Charity Council, strengthening governance and building public trust in the sector".

"With the AIC, he provided strong leadership in moving care beyond hospitals to the community and integrating health and social care to better meet the needs of Singapore's ageing population." Mr Ee said the award holds special meaning for him as his late father had received the same award. Businessman and philanthropist Ee tinguished Service Order in 1985.

Receiving the Meritorious Service Medal are adviser and former director-general of education Ho Peng and chairman of the Malay Language Council board of advisers secretary Yatiman Yusof.

Mr Yatiman's citation says: "He has been an active champion of the Malay language and culture over many years, and has worked tirelessly with multiple public agencies and partners to not only preserve, but also elevate the awareness and practice of the language and culture in Singapore. He is also a diplomat and ambassador for Singapore.'

Mr Lan Shui Conductor Laureate, Singapore Symphony Orchestra Public Service Star

When conductor laureate Lan Shui took over the reins of the Singa-pore Symphony Orchestra (SSO) in 1997, its performance home was the Victoria Concert Hall (VCH), which had vastly inferior acoustics to what is heard there today, follow-ing extensive refurbishments.

Ground-laying for the Esplanade - Theatres on the Bay complex had also just taken place. The SSO was a respectable but unremarkable Asian orchestra. To attract a wider audience, it de-cided to stage a Casual Concerts series featuring more popular classical fare.

Mr Shui admits to feeling nervous about Singaporeans' response to the concerts then.

He says: "We were just thinking about how we could reach more people and let them know that music is for everyone, instead of only a small number of music lovers." Twenty-two years later, the SSO has played at both the Esplanade and VCH, achieved international standing through worldwide tours and recordings, and commissioned 40 new works by local composers. "Most of our concerts achieve 70 per cent to 80 per cent audience attendance," he says, observing that this is no mean feat.

"Even classical music groups in the West have a hard time surviving and selling tickets."

The orchestra's openness to feature different composers and musi-cal styles has broadened Singaporeans'musical palate. Mr Shui, who was born in Hangzhou, China, says: "When I first came to Singapore, audiences barely noticed music by com-posers like Gustav Mahler. Now it's always full house when an orchestra here plays Mahler."

He credits SSO's technical excellence to the commitment of its musicians. "They already know the piece so well, but they still always dig deeper during rehearsals." It also helps, he says, that Singapore Symphony Group chairman Goh Yew Lin understands both mu-

Strengthening identity, competencies of teachers

Ms Ho Peng Advisor and Former Director-General of Education

Raising the quality and professionalism of more than 30,000 teachers in the Ministry of Education's schools is no walk in the park.

But Ms Ho Peng, who was for-merly director-general of educa-tion, has done it with aplomb.

In 2009, she set up a team that worked with teachers across schools, to pick the quintessential elements of teaching.

This led to the launch of the teachers' vision of "Lead, Care and Inspire", a clarion call for teachers to follow their calling.

The 65-year-old also drew up a teachers' code of practice and helped set up various teacher acad-emies and language centres.

These include the Academy of Singapore Teachers, Singapore Teachers Academy for the Arts, Physical Education and Sports Teacher Academy, English Lan-guage Institute of Singapore and Singapore Centre for Chinese Language.

Their aim is to strengthen the competencies, identity and ethos of teachers.

"What I am most proud of today is the very strong corps of Singa-pore teachers led by master teach-ers in various subject areas," she

"The strength of our teaching profession has required several years to build up, but the impact has been great in the classroom

Ms Ho Peng has helped set up various academies and language and has allowed our curriculum to be implemented well.

Ms Ho believes that education is a key pillar in any society, and is about building the future for both country and self.
"My wish is for our education sys-tem to be continually responsive

Changing perceptions, fostering understanding

Mr Yatiman Yusof Chairman, Malay Language Council Board of Advisors, Meritorious Service Medal

Mr Yatiman Yusof, 73, is no stranger to public service. Yet, he is surprised to have won the award. saying: "I have not done much for Singapore that merits this award."

A former editor of Berita Harian and Berita Minggu, he was also an MP and senior parliamentary sec-retary for more than two decades until his retirement in 2006.

He is Singapore's Non-Resident High Commissioner to Kenya and a board member of the Singapore Press Holdings Foundation. He has also served as Non-Resident High Commissioner to Rwanda and as a board member of SingHealth, among others.

Two experiences stand out in his memory: being part of the effort to change perceptions of the status of the Malay language, and fighting to keep healthcare costs affordable. "Proponents in Malaysia and Indonesia used to say that the Malay language and culture suffered an unavoidable 'death'," he says. "But we engaged them and shared the unique nature of multiingapore and our bilingual-ism policy, helping them under-stand the challenges in ensuring our economic growth while pre-serving the values that formed our distinct identity.

Yusof has worked to change perceptions of the Malay language.

"We attended conferences and workshops, and shared with them many books written by Singapore-ans in Malay. Thanks to unstinting efforts on our part, especially among our English-educated Malay writers, they began to change their perceptions." His involvement in the healthcare sector, and as board member and chairman of the volunteer committee at the National Kidney Foundation, meant pushing for better and more affordable healthcare.

"When one loses the effective function of one's kidneys, a person's life changes. It is a painful life that some are unable to endure," he says. Not all of his efforts have been

Not all of his efforts have been successful, though.

"A few years ago, I worked with the Singapore Scouts Association to bring the World Jamboree, a gathering of Scouts from all over the State College of the World and the World State of State of world, to Singapore," he recalls.

"We spent three months travel-ling to most of the Middle Eastern countries and a few African countries to rally support, but we lost to Japan."

Volunteering is in his DNA

ADDRESSING NEEDS

Be an answer to somebody's prayer. That's always the case in public service - to try to help others on something that is meaningful and needed by them.

Mr Gerald Balendran Singham Chairman, National Crime Prevention Council, Public Service Star (Bar)

Mr Gerald Singham credits his lifelong interest in volunteer work to his father.
"He belonged to the post-independence generation

"He belonged to the post-independence generation of Singaporeans who had so much less, yet did so much for the community," says the 58-year-old, who is deputy managing partner at law firm Dentons Rodyk.

He is also vice-chairman of racial harmony advocacy

He is also vice-chairman of racial harmony advocacy group OnePeople.sg
One of his most pressing tasks today is ensuring that elderly Singaporeans do not fall prey to scams.
"In the early years, there was physical crime – burglary, robbery. But crimes today have taken on a whole new typology with these scams," he says.
"A lot of work is being done by the (National Crime Prevention Council) to create greater public awareness and programmes for crime prevention."
Mr Singham especially treasures the bonds forged with fellow volunteers and the satisfaction gleaned from paying it forward to society at large.
The award, he says, is a reminder that public service is in itself a privilege. "It means that we are in circumstances where we have the capacity and means to help others."

others."

Mr Singham believes that the titular phrase in the national anthem, Majulah Singapura, or "onward Singapore", rings as true today as it did for the country's pioneer leaders 54 years ago.

"That's my wish in every way possible – that Singapore is always moving onward and upward, both economically and multiracially as a cohesive society

Building a world-class public transport system

Mr Abdullah Shafiie Mohamed Sidik Member, Public Transport Public Service Star (Bar)

Since becoming a member of the Public Transport Council in 2012, Mr Abdullah Shafiie Mohamed

Mr Abdullan Shafile Monamed Sidik has been kept awake by transport fares.

The reviews of train and bus fares are the most challenging, says the veteran grassroots and union leader.

"The formula we used showed that bus fares had to increase," says the 60-year-old says the 60-year-old. "We had to work out a mechanism for this increase. Those were tough times and there was a public outcry."

But the decision was never taken lightly and involved extensive consultations with different segments of Singapore's population.

"We met various clusters of people, from students to civil servants and organisation leaders. I also represented the Malay commu-nity's feedback and suggestions." Ultimately, he says, the efforts the public transport infrastructure.

"The most important task is to ensure the public enjoys safe, clean and timely transport. Also, it is now easier for the wheelchair-paid off in concrete changes to bound and parents with young children to board buses."

He is now optimistic that Singapore will attain a world-class transport system with excellent train and bus infrastructure and easier

Mr Teo Siong Seng encourages Singaporeans to have a sense of community, camaraderie

A voice for businesses' needs and concerns

Mr Teo Siong Seng Honorary President, Singapore Chinese Chamber of Commerce and Industry

Mr Teo Siong Seng's most memo rable experiences were forged in the cut and thrust of parliamentary centives or carrots. But some carrots hang too high and the rabbits can't reach them," he says, describing difficulties faced by the busi ness community he represents.

The 64-year-old managing director of shipping company Pacific International Lines, who is also chairman of the Singapore Business Federation, recalls a particularly tough period in 2010. Businesses faced rising costs from the hike in foreign worker levy and curbs on foreign man-

A then Nominated Member of Parliament (NMP), he needed to strike a fine balance between what businesses wanted and what the Government could give.

Says Mr Teo: "The Government listens to what businesses say. But businesses must also appreciate what the Government can or cannot do with public money, which entails a degree of goalkeeping.

"As NMPs, we have to raise issues and give constructive suggestions."

Mr Teo hopes Singaporeans will embrace diversity and stay strongly united.

"We're going through a very challenging time, but we've been through half a century of nation building and achieved much through hard work and determination. We should have a sense of compunity. munity, camaraderie and the kam-pung spirit to help one another."

Up for the challenge to boost population health

Professor Philip Choo Wee Jin Group Chief Executive Officer, National Healthcare Group Public Administration Medal (Gold)

There have been no special moments in Professor Philip Choos long career in healthcare – not because he has not enjoyed the experience, but because the work is notyet completed, he says.

There is much left to be done for population health in Singapores, says the 60-year-old.

"We are trying to broaden our healthcare and shift away from the hospital setting to bring carried to the community."

We are also trying to move downstream and address patient frailty.

He was explaining how, through greater integration of health and social services, targeted programmes and timely interventions could serve people at different stagges of their life journey, says the 60-year-old.

In the 1990s, he taught music to young Brirish actors such as Verlando Bloom, Ewan McGregor and Daniel Craig at the Guildlal School of Music and Drama in London.

This was so that they would know how to read music even if their acting careers did not take off. Or, as Professor Bernat Lanskey puts it, "fake it till you make it", But for the past 13 years, he has called Singapore home. The 59-year-old dean says the evolution of the music and arts scene in Singapore and Southers, he has called singapore and southers are in Singapore and Southers are in Singapore and Southers are two thirds artived the focus was on establishing the hardware to emerge, "he says.

Jurong industrial area

As the former chairman of Jurong Town Corporation (TFC), Dr Loo Choon Yong played a part in the development of the Jurong industrial area, which has grown from a sleep backwater 50 years ago to a key driver of Singapore's industrialisation. In addition to stabilising industrial rates, he also reviewed JTC spolicies to minimise speculation in industrial property.
