Jayakumar tops list of 5,470 honoured on National Day

Former senior minister S. Jayakumar, who is senior legal adviser to the Foreign Minister, has been awarded Singapore's highest civilian honour, the Order of Temasek (With High Distinction), for his sustained and invaluable contributions to Singapore.

He served as a diplomat and minister in a public service career spanning more than 30 years, and continued to lend his expertise on issues such as the Pedra Branca dispute and water agreements with Malaysia after his retirement from politics.

Speaking to The Sunday Times,

Professor Jayakumar, 80, said he was grateful and surprised by the gesture: "If Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong and Foreign Minister Vivian Balakrishnan feel that it will be beneficial for me to share my experience and knowledge, how can I say no?"

Those at the forefront of the fight against Covid-19 are also among the 5,470 recipients of this year's National Day Awards.

They include recipients of the Meritorious Service Medal – Ms Chan Lai Fung, permanent secretary for national research and development as well as public sector science and tech-

Former Cabinet minister S. Javakumar stepped down from politics in 2011, but carries on doing public service. He is still a regular face at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MFA) where he is a senior legal adviser to Minister Vivian Balakrishnan.

Whenever Singapore is involved in complex legal or diplomatic issues, Professor Jayakumar is called upon to help, given his institutional knowledge and experience.

For his "sustained and invaluable contributions to the nation", he has been conferred the Order of Temasek (With High Distinction), topping the list of this year's National Day Award recipients. He is the 10th Singaporean to receive the nation's highest civilian honour.

The 80-year-old, who served as diplomat and minister, said he was grateful and surprised by the ges-ture: "All these matters I have been involved with concern important national interests of Singapore. If Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong and Foreign Minister Vivian Balakr-ishnan feel that it will be beneficial for me to share my experience and knowledge, how can Isay no?"

This sense of duty to Singapore has been his motivating force in a public service career spanning close to 50 years.

As a young law professor, he was called on to be Singapore's permanent representative to the United Nations from 1971 to 1974. He re turned to academia and was dean of the National University of Singa-pore (NUS) law faculty till he joined politics in 1980.

roped in on challenging issues like Pedra Branca and the water agreements with Malaysia. So it was no surprise that he would be the go-to person when Singapore got in-volved in complex legal issues, But what Prof Jayakumar brought to the table was not just legal exper-tise, but also diplomatic nous, say those who have worked with him. As foreign minister from 1994 to 2004, he oversaw a range of com-plex bilateral issues, including an agreement under which the Malayan Railway would vacate the Malayan Railway would vacate the land at Tanjong Pagar, the Pedra Branca disputes with Malaysia, as well as transboundary haze problems involving Indonesia.

Even as he fought fiercely to protect Singapore's legal interests, he never forgot the importance of maintaining good relations with neighbouring and other countries.

Singapore's successful election to Singapore's successful election to a non-permanent seat at the United Nations Security Council from 2001 to 2002 was "a reflection of his strong leadership and influence in fostering extensive ties and Singa-pore's esteemed global reputation" said an MFA spokesman. In 2007, Prof Jayakumar led the

In 2007, Prof Jayakumar led the team that successfully pleaded Singapore's case on Pedra Branca at the International Court of Justice at the Hague. awarded soverleghty over the out-crop to Singapore. Malaysia dropped its applications in 2018. On why he continues to help, Prof Jayakumar, who had also held the Law and Home Affairs portfolios, said he hoped to contribute his insti-tutional knowledge, and through doing so develop new generations of office-holders, diplomats and international lawyers. He had served nating minister for national security and senior minister before step-

This year, two Distinguished Service Order awards were conferred on Mr Koh Choon Hui, 79, chairman of the Singapore Children's Society (SCS), and Professor Wang Gungwu, 89, founding chairman of the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy at NUS, and the former chair man of the ISEAS – Yusof Ishak In-stitute and East Asian Institute (EAI). Mr Koh, a stalwart of the social service sector for over four decades, had not only expanded the SCS' reach but also nurtured many social service agencies.

One of his enduring contributions was to align the pay scales of social service sector workers with those of the civil service when he those of the civil service when he was acting honorary general secretary and vice-president of the National Council of Social Service from 1992 to 2000, laying the groundwork for the sector to recruit and retain staff. Prof Wang, a historian who played a key role in building up and growing the three institutes, is recognised for strengthening Singapore's position as an independent base for leading research on China and East Asia among other things, said the Ministry of Education.

He said on Friday: "Thave enjoyed all the work I have been able to do and learnt a great deal while doing it. This is an honour I share with my wife Margaret whose deep feeling for Singapore have made my work here all the more satisfying." His wife, who died yesterday, had been a big factor in his decision to leave Hong Kong and return to Sinomy, which became the EAI.

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR BENJAMIN ONG MOH immediate past director of medical services

It was with mixed feelings that Associate Professor Benjamin Ong left his role as director of medical services (DMS) at the Ministry of Health

(MOH) in February.
The coronavirus was sweeping the world, and Singapore had just detected its first case of Covid-19 on Jan 23. For someone who entered the medical profession because he wanted to serve the public, it was not easy for Prof Ong to walk away. But the neurologist, who returned to the National University of Singapore as senior vice-president of health education and resources, knew he had left things in the "very good hands" of Associate Professor Kenneth Mak and other colleagues.

MS CHAN LAIFUNG

Permanent Secretary, National Research Foundation and Public Sector Science & Technology Policy and Plans Office; Chairman, A*Star Meritorious Service Medal

As a student, Ms Chan Lai Fung was disappointed when she did not do as well at the O-level examinations as she had for her school exams. At the time, it felt like "the end of the world".

But as it turned out, those grades did not matter. Years later, she went on to become one of Singapore's top civil servants.

It was fitting then that as Permanent Secretary for Education from 2012 to 2019, she led efforts to shift the focus away from grades and to broaden the definition of success. Streaming is being re-placed by subject-based banding, allowing stu-dents to take a subject at a level based on their ability. The PSLE scoring system was also revamped. Ms Chan, who has been in public service for over 30 years, also championed a single salary struc-ture for both graduate and non-graduate teachers. "Why do we insist on them jumping through hoops to complete their degree before we put them on the same pathway? Ultimately, it must be skills and competencies that matter, "she said. Even now, the 56-year-old still offers her perspectives when people bring up hot-button topics on education. "I think my (Ministry of Education) colleagues are doing a wonderful job and it would be terrible for their work to be misunderstood."

MR DESMOND CHIN Commissioner of Prisons

Public Administration Medal (Gold)

Mr Desmond Chin joined the Singapore Prison Service (SPS) in July 1990, and was appointed commissioner in October 2016. The 54-year-old has played an instrumental role in transforming the SPS into a well-regarded correctional system locally and internationally.

Two decades years ago, SPS was a traditional custodial agency faced with the challenges of severely overcrowded prisons, limited rehabilitation programmes, high staff attrition and poor architectures. public perception.

Today, it has a stellar safety and security record.

Today, it has a stellar safety and security record, and is one of the few correctional systems in the world that is under-crowded.

The agency continues to deliver effective evidence-based rehabilitation programmes, seen in its low recidivism rate over the past decade.

Mr Chin oversaw the creation of the agency's 2025 transformation plans, including its strategies of Prisons Without Guards, which leverages the holdey to automate mundage and routine. gles of Frisons without outlants, winto the technology to automate mundane and routine tasks, and Prisons Without Walls, which sees more inmates supervised in the community to support their reintegration into society.

"This award is a testimony of the dedication and work of our Captains of Lives in the rehabilitation and reintegration of our offenders back into their communities and their families," said Mr Chin of his staff. "We will continue

MRS PUSPA AMIR YEOW

Director of Temasek Polytechnic Library Public Administration Medal (Silver)

I am truly humbled to receive this award and grateful to be able to contribute, be given the opportunities to explore, to pilot and implement ideas and be able to grow in a very nurturing educational environment.

Intelligence Directorate, Singapore

In her 26 years at Temasek Poly-technic (TP), Mrs Puspa Amir Yeow has played an active role in spearheading the library's digital transformation. "The library has moved toManager, Cybersecurity wards e-resources, rather than physical copies of print and au dio-visual media. Hence, libra ries need to constantly explore new ways of working and part-nering, through use of new tech-nologies that can enable break-throughs to achieve service innovation and provide delightful cus tomer experiences," said the li-brary director. The 59-year-old has led multiple projects that have allowed her team to gain new digital skills and collaborate with peers from within TP and other polytechnics. In November 2018, she launched Ask Coppie, a chatbot that provides a platform for staff and students from all polytech-copyright matters in education. In April last year, she launched the Ask Library chatbot, a joint initiative with another polytech nic, to respond to inquiries and promote current issues such as fake news.

nics to find answers related to Mrs Yeow also led her team last year to develop five robotic pro-cess automation projects, which saw total savings of 7,500 man-hours for the library.

"I am truly humbled to receive this award and grateful to be able to contribute, be given the opportunities to explore, to pilot and implement ideas and be able to grow in a very nurtur-ing educational environment," she said.

MRGENETAN

Senior Director (Special Duties), National Library Board Public Administration Medal (Silver)

When he was handed the task of leading Singapore's year-long bi-centennial commemoration last year, Mr Gene Tan felt a heavy re-sponsibility. "This was a priceless chance to move the needle on how Singaporeans see ourselves and our history," said Mr Tan, 50. The slate of activities, which included talks, tours and exhibitions, ended up surpassing expectations, with the run of the flagship Bicentennial Experience – a showcase telling 700 years of Singapore history through sets, live performances and multimedia – being extended for three more months.

Mr Tan, who also worked on the Singapore Memory Project and the Future Of Us exhibition that was part of the SG50 celebrations in 2015, said being involved in the bi-centennial was like "winning the prize of a lifetime"

"Timing, circumstances, technology and years of research came to-gether with a team of stupendously talented and driven people," he said.

MS WONG CHIN LING Director-General of the Meteorological Service Singapore Public Administration Medal (Silver) (Bar)

Ms Wong Chin Ling, 59, led the development of the Centre for Climate Research Singapore at the Meteorological Service Singapore (MSS) to support Singapore's cli-

She led the development of the National Sea Level Programme last year to improve understanding of rising sea levels here. She also headed the Asean Specialised Meteorological Centre, hosted by MSS, which provided early warnings of transboundary haze in 2015 and 2019.

She led Singapore's successful bid to host the World Meteorological Organisation (WMO) Regional Office for Asia and South-West Pacific, which began opera-tions in 2018. As an elected member of the WMO executive council since 2015, she has raised the profile of Sin tive council since 2015, she has raised the profile of Sin-gapore in the international meteorological community. Ms Wong said she is grateful to receive this award and sees it as recognition of the MSS' work. "MSS has been building capabilities in climate sci-ence and sea-level research, and forging collaborations nationally and internationally. These developments are deeply fulfilling to me as they will contribute to strengthening our nation's climate resilience," she said.

MR KHALILA, BAKAR Director (Energy & Climate Policy), Ministry of Sustainability and the Environment Public Administration Medal (Bronze)

Since joining the Singapore Economic Development Board in 2007, Mr Khalil A. Bakar, 37, has helped to drive the job and business opportunities in Singapore's energy and chemicals sector by carving our new areas of development, including decarbonisation, hydrogen, biofuels and polymer additive manufacturing. He has also contributed to a study on the future of energy and chemicals, which aims to ensure the long-term competitiveness and sustainable growth of the in-dustry. Mr Khalil, who is now on secondment to the Ministry of Sustainability and the Environment, said sustainability and climate change are an increasingly important part of Singapore's national agenda.

Tam excited to continue working with my public sector colleagues and private sector partners to advance Singapore's energy transition journey, as we build up ca-pabilities for a competitive and sustainable low-carbon

DRSHAWNLUM (Singapore) PUB Water Network Panel Public Service Medal

A passionate advocate for environ-mental conservation, Dr Shawn Lum, 57, has worked with national water agency PUB to forge various collaborations on nature and water issues over the past decade. Dr Lum, who sat on PUB's Water

Network Panel from 2009 to earlier this year, described his time on the panel as "an eye-opener". It in-cluded representatives from various sectors, who networked and gave feedback on PUB's policies and programmes.

Among other things, Dr Lum worked with the PUB to conduct nature outreach at locations such as Lorong Halus Wetland, and also had conversations with teachers to see how water and nature could be integrated into a new curriculum for social science.

He also played a role in PUB's en-gagements with nature groups for the water agency's major infrastructure projects in order to mitigate possible disruptions. Dr Lum described his contribu-tions as modest, saying: "None of us community partners really thought about any individual honours. It was really about taking something we knew a little bit about, and cared a lot for, and sharing it with others."

DR AZLINDA ANWAR

District Councillor, South West Community Development Council Public Service Medal

With her extensive experience in the research and healthcare indus-tries, Dr Azlinda Anwar, 51, has helped to shape the direction of many programmes at the South West Community Development Council (CDC), including schemes that promote active ageing and community health.

As vice-chairman of the South West CDC's Healthy and Active Life-style functional committee, she has helped to boost support and resources for caregivers, contributed to an initiative to help sick and frail residents stay active and socialise and also been involved in a scheme to help chronic disease patients bet-ter manage their conditions. Dr Azlinda, who is also a director at the Temasek Life Sciences Laboratory, said her award "really is for the excellent group of people and volunteers whom I have the plea-sure of working with while giving back to society".

"It has been a fulfilling journey so far, and there is still a lot more that we can do, either as an individual or a group, to pay it forward especially during this (coronavirus) crisis."

MR TAN RICHARD

General Secretary, United Workers of Electronics and Electrical Industries Public Service Medal

Veteran trade unionist Tan Richard, 54, who is also a member of the National Trades Union Con-gress (NTUC) central committee, is a strong advocate for workers' training and career progression.

In his role as co-chairman of the NTUC's electronics and precision and machinery engineering cluster, he played an instrumental role in the development of Singapore's in-dustry transformation map (ITM) for the electronics sector. The ITMs are blueprints that map out how key industries in Singapore should transform themselves for the future. Mr Tan, an employee of Hitachi

Chemical (Singapore), also walked the talk at his workplace. When he was in the firm's train-ing department, he managed to convince his management team to introduce robotics into the company's operations, which in turn raised productivity as well as work-ers' prospects. "As union leaders, we do our best to help workers and we don't expect anything in return. Serving workers, ensuring that their livelihoods are secure—that makes us really happy,"

he said.
