

Peking University dethrones NUS as Asia's top university

National University of Singapore came in second in an annual ranking of institutions in the region, losing its place as Asia's No. 1 university over the past four years. China's Peking University took the top spot in the latest QS Asia University Rankings released on Tuesday.

Nanyang Technological University slipped to fifth spot – a drop from last year's third place.